Do you want your child to be an intelligent child?

Children in their infant stages possess a genuine ability to learn languages. A child`s brain has a special function for memorizing words. Since human beings have a two-sided brain, it can be said that the left-brain is favored more by adults and that the right brain is used more by children.

The right brainhas a direct sense of image and provides an excellent vehicle for language, quick-math, creativity, memorization and music. Therefore, the child can absorb its native language without being taught. For the right brain there is no complexity in language. It is evident in any country in the world that a baby learns its native language within one or two years.

The human right brainhas computer-like mathematical functions especially present in infants. A baby has higher propensity for mathematical functions, but this declines with age. It is easer to train one`s ability to count when still very young. For babies, learning to count is as learning words.

Kaiwa Japanese and Quick-Math School uses flash cards and reinforces the child`s potential ability to learn quickly.
The right brainreacts rapidly to the large quantity of flash cards and stimulate the child`s natural ability to memorize. Using flash cards at high speed, the child reads the character and the word, leading to integrated brain activity and memorization. One can memorize vocabulary at any age.
